The Government Printing Office publishes the Administrative Notes Technical Supplement , or, ANTs for Federal depository libraries. The series addresses libraries entering and leaving the FDLP, classification and cataloging changes, and updates to the List of Classes . Depository libraries use ANTs primarily to identify call number and item number changes in cataloging records. Libraries frequently scan the publication to identify issues that effect their collection and materials, and they make the changes to the publications and associated catalog records as appropriate.

It is distributed bi-monthly to all Federal Depository Libraries in their normal shipment boxes.
