Government Book Talk

GPO is pleased to announce " Government Book Talk," a new blog about Government publications! The goal is to raise the profile of some of the best publications from the Federal Government, past and present. New and popular publications will be reviewed, information about new publications will be provided, and some out-of-print classics will be discussed. The idea is to spotlight the amazing variety of Government publications and their impact on ourselves and our world – and have fun while doing it.