Nominations are now being accepted for the 2009 Federal Depository Library of the Year Award. The chosen library will be announced during the Fall 2009 Federal Depository Library Conference and Meeting of the Depository Library Council.

The Federal Depository Library of the Year Award provides special recognition for a library that furthers the goal of the Federal Depository Library Program by ensuring that the American public has free access to its Government's information.

You are invited to nominate any Federal depository library, regardless of its size or type. Past winners, libraries of current Depository Library Council members and libraries on probation are ineligible for consideration.

The nomination deadline is July 1, 2009. The winning library will be notified by the end of July 2009.

Read more about the Library of the Year Award, the nomination guidelines, and access the nomination form.