

Person on the Street Transcripts

Video 2: Can you name a Federal Government publication?

Kelly: This is Kelly with the U.S. Government Printing Office, out in the streets of Washington, DC, trying to find out if people can name a Federal Government publication.

<introduction music>

Interviewee 1: Constitution.

Interviewee 2: No idea.

Interviewee 3: Congressional Record.

Interviewee 4: Um, encyclopedias. Anything.

Interviewee 5: Probably something about the military is in there.

Interviewee 6: Moby Dick.

Interviewee 7: Constitution?

Interviewee 8: Um, I'd say an example of a Presidential speech.

Interviewee 9: The Constitution.

Interviewee 10: Um, public records?

Kelly: Come discover your local Federal depository library. Visit www.gpoaccess.gov/libraries.html. For the U.S. Government Printing Office, this is Kelly signing off.
