Facing Training Needs:
Building a Training Resource

The 2012 Depository Library Council Meeting & Federal Depository Library Conference: Celebrating the Past, Building the Future Together
Wed. Oct. 17, 2012

The community ranks highly the need for more education and training whenever asked, e.g. the State Forecast, the Biennial Survey, previous DLC/FDL conferences and DLC recommendations.

As GPO prepares to meet community needs, the DLC working group on education and training is collecting community input into several question regarding the kind of training that would best serve our needs.

Specifically, we would like to hear about the following:
1. Audience: Should we try to reach all groups, focus on one group, focus on a primary & secondary audience?
    a. Librarians in FDLs
    b. Librarians with little or no experience with GovDocs
    c. Data specialists
    d. Students and other library users
    e. Professors/instructors in LIS and other disciplines
2. Model
    a. Training model: registry, clearinghouse, repository? What model would you suggest?
    b. Partnership: GPO with/without partners?
3. Suggestions for a name for an education and training resources

Please send all thoughts, feedback and suggested names to the DLC Ed. & Training working group
