PSA for Colleges with FDLs on Campus

Do you know where to get the research you need for your next paper? Don't panic. A quick visit to your campus library can get you free access to official U.S. Government information on topics like science, history, technology, health, travel, the environment, genealogy, and more. Let us help you discover what U.S. Government information can do for you. Ask your campus librarian to point you to the Federal depository library, located within your campus library.

PSA for AM Radio Stations

Libraries are a treasure trove of U.S. Government information. Explore free, official information on topics like science, history, technology, health, careers, travel, the environment, genealogy, and more at your local Federal depository library. There are more than 1,000 nationwide, all with expert librarians to assist you in navigating this information. Let the Government Publishing Office and libraries help you discover what Government information can do for you. Ask your local library if they are a Federal depository, and get started today.
