Just a reminder. We are just tickets about to get started. If you want to open up the chatbox so you can get out questions in common. Tis picture mouse to the top of the WebEx screen and open the chatbox. Check out your comments or questions to all participants. We will be get started in just a moment. >>

Good morning. I'm going to start now. Will come back to the last session, the wrapup of the depository Library Council meeting. Immунscout medicine. I am going to facilitate this discussion. Thank you Rosemary. >>

I will turn it up a little. I am going to facilitate the discussion, sort of a summary of what counsel her. What we have teased out to our session, through attending other meetings, and in talking with all of you. Then we will ask for your feedback to hear what issues we may have missed or thoughts that you have about issues, questions you have about things you heard. We have a lot of GPO staff here to answer specific questions if you have them. You can also always contact counsel or GPO current directly. You see, they are not shy about giving out the email. You will here say this a couple times. We see that at the beginning of the conversation for the beginning of those discussions. We want to continue having those discussions what we want from GPO, what they need from us and how we can work well together. So I wanted to do a little bit of business here. Lori got from, I assume, Lance or Kelly, final numbers of participation. It looks like we had 500 people participating between the two different virtual sessions and the in person registration. That is really just a great, great turnout. Thanks everyone for your participation. [ Applause ].

I want to remind you about your booklet from your registration pack that. Places that you take notes, if you use it, tell us on the evaluation form. Go back through your nose, and fill out the evaluation. I saw turned impactors a box on the registration desk you can come in their.

It's probably easiest to turn them and before you go. So if you have a chance, we will go through the sessions and refresh your memory and some of the things you stop. Please fill out your evaluations. We take this feedback seriously. It helps us to have a project if meeting and make it work for everybody. So work on those as well. >> This is also traditionally where we go through the recommendations from our last meeting. Those are recommendations of the depository Library Council to the GPO director, spring 2016. This is on FDLP.gov. You can read it there. There is a picture of it, I think. Actually, my clicker is not working. Please hold. There we go. There is a picture for the on my attendees. You can get that from FDLP.gov and go through. You will see that we made several recommendations and Mrs. GPO 10 response to those recommendations. This is where we review this with the community.

Recommendation number one is to incorporate several social media outlets to the FDLP directory. In the spring we had a session about social media and using that to promote your depository and come from an information generally. We are likely to have it published at the same time with social media guidelines for depository outreach work. It's really helpful and it's also on FDLP.gov and it has some great tips in Counsel, they had this discussion and they looked at how social media was being used. Think that their #love my FDLP campaign. We thought this was important to have our local repository FDLP account is where our patrons could find them. We've got the federal directory library was where we could put. They suggested they included in their [Indiscernible] government publications. Sorry for the acronyms. This is the one that is forthcoming with the great enhancements we said earlier this week. They are already in the works. In 2017, you will start seeing these things. What we actually need now we made a suggestion as your voice and GPO responded. The next step where this is released, and I know that not all of us are in this group. Go to all of your peers that are repository so they can include their social media profiles.

Once Sistan next year, make sure you go in and update your profile to include that information so that this all comes farcical. We had no idea, GPO listen, we have to follow through on. >> Recommendation number two was to increase communication about what was then the test phase of the regional discourage policy implementation. DPL responded at length in the document. The summary is that they developed and we've seen over the last past several months implementation of a plan composted webinars included in their travel coming to our conferences, a LA, and AA and double L to speak to those at round tables and intersections particularly interested in conversation about the discard policy.

We have seen some discussion at this meeting that indicates a lot more people understand it at that there are still some ambiguities there.
There are still some questions. Again, we are having ongoing conversations. This is something to pay attention to. GPO understands their outreach and education around this policy shift would be ongoing as the project moves forward. Some of the questions that we all have cannot be answered and we certainly miss work. There are a lot of pieces they have to fall in place for this to work, to be able to fully. As his pieces fall into place, we need to stay engaged and continue to work with GPO to have this conversation about how best to manage our collection.

So, recommendation number three was that GPO set and publicize future dates for FDLP meetings as far and advance as possible. This is something we all agreed on. It makes lances and the staffs work.

Easier and less expensive potential for some of us to attend. This is something we can all agree on. GPO absolutely acknowledges that they want you to continue to having the annual and part in person the. They release it for the spring and fall. The next meeting after this one, the 2017 and July of this past summer as a pattern going forward for your planning or planning for your colleagues who want to attend in person meeting or schedule some time to fully participate in the virtual meetings. They will beheld the Wednesday through Friday following text a. So find every 15th on your calendar and it's the next Wednesday through Friday that we will be doing the spring virtual meeting bearing outer other other measures.

The fall meeting will be held Monday through Wednesday following Columbus Day. So find Columbus Day, the Monday through Wednesday following that will be this meeting. These are helpful planning tools and we think GPO for setting these guidelines which if you look at the calendar copies are not necessarily surprises to invest. But it helps us all plan and hopefully we will be able to enable people to participate fully in these meetings. I know counsel gets a lot of peace and I hope the community gets a lot of these as well. We have also been told that for the spring virtual, counsel will be invited to DC to meet in person while they are conducting the spring virtual meeting because it was so productive last spring. We hope to be able to reprise that I can see her.

We also had one commendation included in our set of recommendations, this means that GPO does not have to respond to recommendations. They are official and they have to produce it an official response. We wanted to take time again to thank Mary Alice who is the superintendent of she pushed us really hard. The reason you see so much of the progress that we see reflected in the meeting today is due in part to her vision and energy. It is translated by the hard work of the GPO staff. But we did want to think Mary Alice again for her hard work over the past almost 5 years. [Applause].

Now we will do a recap of meeting by which we mean the Council meeting, the sessions that were in this room. This is an ongoing little gripe with counsel that we don't get to see the other great educational programs. Of course, this year, one of the streams was broadcast and recorded. So we will get to go back and watch those. We wanted for some of you may not have been an some of these meetings because red other great presentations learning from your colleagues who are agency partners, we wanted to recap what counsel presented, where we discussed, and where we think the issues are with just some highlights and key takeaways for each of those.

Then we will open it up for questions after that so that folks can comment, season ask us questions, you can give us concerns that you have going forward. I would also like for you to think about the second and third bullets on the slight. Think about collaboration opportunities and what you will tell your director or your teen or your board about the FDLP. What did you learn here? What is great for your patrons, library, collection? What did you take away from the city can share this a little bit as we have time for all of us can take oh yeah, that was a really preprogrammed.

That's important in a really want to talk books I get home. Or, this is the next step I'm going to take. I'm going to make sure that I go home and read the memorandum of agreement template to see if maybe I can be a price preservation partner, Stewart. My library may want to do that. We will have that discussion on that journey. First, I want to have Jim come up and talk a little bit about our first program which is the public library report. >> Hello everybody. I'm Jim Shaw. From the University of Nebraska, Omaha. The appropriate public library session was Monday afternoon and if that seems like it was a long time ago, it does. [Laughter]. What we did on Monday afternoon was with our colleagues in GPO we reviewed a draft. Again it is a draft of their report on public libraries in relation to the Federal Depository Library program. The genesis of the idea was noticing that over the last several years, going back to the depths of the great recession in 2008 and 2009, well over 40 public libraries draft from the program. The question becomes again, why? Either patterns among the library strapping that could be identified that could be addressed with support or something to help out and encourage people to stay with the program, or even better, have new public libraries join the program.

So our colleagues, Susan at Ken's and Susan Miller walked us through the draft of the report. They referred to information that was gleaned from the official drop letters that were submitted by the library staff with the program. They cleaned information from the biennial surveys. And also they addressed at least a little bit, some of the comments and remarks and information they are picking up in the GPL on the go visits to public libraries where they are talking to people out in the field, in the trenches.

So we walked through the report. The report is posted FDLP.gov. You can go through yourself. What we are thinking about now is as counsel is what do we do going forward. This morning at our review session, a couple of ideas came up that over the next few weeks, next couple of months, councilmembers will be working on we need to take a look at program requirements and what options might be available to address those requirements and remain in the program. What does it mean in terms of essential titles, the basic collection. What kind of options are available to really pursue being an electronic depository? What if those options are relation to program requirements make sure that our colleagues in the public libraries have an appreciation and understanding, help them understand what they are so they can choose what might work best for them. This all goes towards fostering more communication with our colleagues in the public libraries. And promoting things like the FDLP Academy, things like that, where people can get more training and support for what they are doing. One idea that has come up a couple of times which is really, I think, generating enthusiasm is approaching our colleagues with counsel on state libraries who have an interest in civic engagement working with public libraries from their perspective. There is a potential collaboration between FDLP and K COS LA. You can expect them to be doing their homework over the next few months to try to put together some ideas, potentially a recommendation for GPO to move forward.

But my listing is on the listing on Monday, if you have, about the session on Monday or on the draft report, please by November 18, could you please send your comment to see at Cannes it GPO TECO or Susan Miller, SK Miller at SK Miller@GPO.gov so that they can incorporate that information to what they're doing to move the draft report to a final report.

Thank you. >> It's back to me. Scott Matheson. For a review of the last program on Monday afternoon which was a program about regional discard. What we included in our program was a discussion for the history of the policy change that GPO has been implementing. A demonstration of a key tool that will help us implement the policy as a community. Then, a brief discussion of some issues around it. This discussion continued in two other places, one of which was on Tuesday morning. There was a discussion as well in this room, and then also on Tuesday evening, this icon at the regional's meeting, there was a discussion about how this might be implemented and who might be interested in working on this. Again, I'm going to hold up the handout. This is not in the program materials for the conference. This is one of the policy page that fits all of the published policies from superintendent documents. Is four pages. Never has four pages so much discussion. [Laughter]. This is great. This is the policy and purpose statement. The policy itself is really half a page. Then some definitions and applications. This is brief. Really, if you're interested in the sky. Consent about this issue, please read the policy. And please participate in these discussions because really that is I think what we've come to understand the beginning of a discussion about how we move forward with this policy. >> There are some ambiguities in the policy. There some discretion for the superintendent of documents in one of the steps about whether to allow discard or not. We started to have a discussion yesterday morning about some of the frameworks or decision points that the superintendent might use when making that decision. I do not think that this is something that we are ever going to have a strict rubric. I don't think we're going to get that nor do I think we want that, frankly. I think we want some discretion with the superintendent. But we do want to list that the incumbent superintendent should consider when exercising his discretion to allow regionals to discard or not.

That is the beginning of one discussion around regional discard. Another discussion that we heard in a different for him was a discussion of what titles are available and how big runs of material are that are for dealing with sure or feeling acute ship. They want to do the work of discard only if it is going to buy this space back. That make sense from their point of view. So, projects like adding Federal Register, the historical Fettig wrote with to start, going back in time, when those projects are complete, when the progress in their complete and those materials are available then you can start having a discard lists, potential discard list that regionals might choose to exercise that looks appealing to them. If you know the Congressional record, you know it's huge. If you know the Federal Register at 70, the Federal Register at 70,000 to 100,000 pages a year, it's huge. As those projects to fruition and receive completed and FD CAS, it's a little unsettling for some of us is that the ambiguity is there around to some issues those around all of these issues in the policy. We will not have an answer in six months. Won't have an answer by the next meeting. This is ongoing conversation. Please stay caged with it and continue to be concerned about the management of our collection and about the ability of our colleagues to provide the services that we rely on.

Regional discard, there is a lot of emotion in some areas, and a lot of questions raised. Expect this answers to be forthcoming. Please continue to stay engaged in the conversation. With counsel, with regional. This is good that we are these issues and we get good answers and have good decisions made. This is our shared collection.
That was Monday. >> Scott. This is Marianne Mason, University of Iowa. Can interject about the regional discard process conversation? We sent Russell provided a nutshell demonstration. She had a more thorough presentation at a separate session. I want to remind the benefits for the regionals as well as the benefits for the selective libraries. Sometimes they are interconnected and they are the same. Just to reinforce the notion that the regional discard is voluntary. I learned that the regional meeting last evening that there are two libraries who are prepared to submit, be the first to submit this for discard. Of course, they cannot be fully approved on per until there are those for preservation stewards and geographically distributed areas. The benefits for both the regionals as well as selective libraries is that there is a single tool or application. That is super. Also, the added the combined benefit for both regionals and selective is being aware of the opportunity to become preservation stewards. That is true that knowledge gained from revealing in the discard list. They will be visible from both. I think you have covered a great deal. It was a great summary. But those are some nutshell and very practice oriented revenues.

Thank you. In addition to the two folks who were thinking about preparing lists to request to discard, which of course cannot be proved yet. There were getting for preservation partners on record. There were maybe a dozen people who were interested in becoming stewardship partners for that. There's a very small list of items that are currently eligible for discard by regionals. We need to before preservation stewards for those titles. We heard great stories about WPA. We heard a great story about serial set from Colorado. These are wonderful efforts. I plan to participate. I want to get our folks involved in some of this as well. But again, I'm not sure I know we don't have agricultural hearings which are some of the titles on the first discard list. So I cannot help it that, getting us to the for preservation stewards to actually start trialing this discard process. But the more of us who take on these things, the sooner we will start to have some of these answers as we start to move some of these things to the process. So even just within a small group of us who are regionals, there are a lot of people who are interested in these preservation storage of roles. I would encourage all of you to go back and talk at your local meetings, to your administrators. As I have said over and over again, these are things we do anyway. We are committed to keeping some of these features because they are vitally important to our patrons. So read the agreement and see if there's a way that you can make those materials put them under this stewardship agreement so that then you are one of the people helping to move this process forward.

Regional discard will continue to be a discussion that we will have for sure.

Digital stewardship. Tuesday morning we started with digital stewardship discussion. See more great work reflected from the GPO staff. This will give us a rundown on that. >> Good morning. I'm Beth Williams from the Stanford while library. We had a great program for those of you that didn't have the opportunity to attend Tuesday morning. Our large panel gave us a description of GPO's preservation plan. In both broad and specific terms, there were a few highlights if you didn't have the opportunity to attack. We had a great discussion from Jessica T men from GPO's own internal assessment of its status against standards and we learned a lot of what it means to be entrusted with digital repository. We know it was a longer in-depth discussion. Lucky for those who had the ability to have missed it or attended. If you have a chance to review it, I encourage you to do. We also heard a description from the silver plan from GPO's process of adjusting ingesting into &. The highlight for me was David walls description of preservation guidelines. These are in draft form and have been released. They are available on the FDLP.com site. Four pages, much less raw at four pages per I encourage you to take a look at these guidelines. This is a very simple, straightforward process that you can follow to contribute federal to trying to become a fed partner. As a non-technology partner is that the real process is not simple. We've learned that those of us that are embarking on complex digitization process have the ability to transfer all of those processes very simply and contributing material and to that of CAS. I encourage you to take a look at these guidelines. They are at these GPO has asked for feedback no later than November 9. If you have comments, see the feedback, suggestions. Center feedback to preserve fed info@GPO.gov.

I assume that will be straightforward and easy to find. Thanks to all those folks and people that provided information also. It was a real rich discussion about preservation activity at GPO which makes me feel good about the future. Again, I think this where I silver starting the conversation idea from David walls. This again, these guidelines for the digitization project are something that are starting point for a discussion with GPL. If you are starting a prediction and you sink to digitize, please contact GPO, contact David or just ask GPL and they will get you to the right place. Have that discussion and say that you have that material that you scanned and has the mediated, have that discussion and see if the material that was important enough for you will be important enough to others as well. Why not edit to tape to as well. We put things in our local repository coming campus, Internet archive. Once you have it there copied everywhere. To GPO about getting it into into as well.

At the next session was about partnership and whether or not your bribery sting it today. It could be a bitnet partner. We had a ceremony where University of Colorado became a part. Here are some of the papers from that. Kiersten Cropsey S a library of Ohio. I feel like I'm going to repeat a lot of what both specimens got said. Can you always also be effeminate partner. co and also more opportunities have yet to be seen. We talked about those local projects that you are already doing, whether the collections you are storing are definitely not going to be getting rid of anytime soon. If the collection she digitizing already, could they be ingested into FED CIS and make great partner opportunities. We heard from several institutions interested in are currently serving as FED CIS partners. As a reminder, if you're interested in and serving as a partner in any capacity, please reach out to GPO. Start the discussion. Spent one of the key things that I took away from this session was when we heard from the Colorado and Kentucky, one who has completed an agreement on who is in the process, is that it really is a template MOU that they were both able to make changes where GPL give little, take a little, there were some discussions. If you read that, Colorado is not going to pull back the entire serial set from the remote storage in order to stay on every single that's crazy talk. But that's there are ways to walk around the and improve the preservation agreement and the improvement of those materials. GPO is open to discussing protect your director cutting top or. To GPO and see where you can get with those partnerships.

After lunch, we can LSC and update. Some of you all of you got this handout which is library service and management update. This is a brief summary of the things that we heard from Lori interesting about all of the work they have done over the past six months but really over the past year. All of the projects that are coming to fruition and that are moving along through the pipeline.

Council finds this useful because we do not get to go to those individual sessions where you get a very specific in-depth update on this programs. There is a question about whether that's valuable to the rest of the community to have a session dedicated to what's going on with the folks in the big red brick building. Council can get another update and we can take it off-line or we could do 3 to 4. All of these things are options. In your feedback forms, and her conversations with counselors, it is know whether this is valuable to as a community as well, this particular type of session where we have a summary of what is going on. If it is useful to you, we will continue to. If it is not, we will find different with the council to get that information easier time for something else. Just a question that, should it continue. Please take the handout that was in your packet, it was on the right side, and go through. These are great poet talking points for your staff, Director, Dean. For the people back at your library, people who did not come to the conference. If it to your neighboring coordinator who did not have time to come and didn't have time to watch in the stream. This is a great update on what is going on and what projects GPO is working on, how they are being responsive to the community and areas where we could frankly provide input to make these more useful and better.

Closer to questions this is a valuable session for everybody? Council finds it helpful but is valuable for everyone. Take this update and make sure gets all beyond just you. You were here, you heard a lot of this material even if you didn't hear everything and she. Give it to some BS contact them, habitat about what's going on at GPO. Is allowed to talk about.

One other item that has come up that his new business recently. It is something that we want to make sure that everyone knew that GPO was on top of that we are keeping our ear out as well to haply serve as a sounding board and advisory panel on this issue. Government information online, the virtual reference service that many of us volunteered to answer questions for. It was run out of the University of Illinois, Chicago, by John Schuler. That is under review. It is not under review. People are looking at how that program can continue, what the benefits are, what the use was, and looking at the cost-benefit of a program and how it might move forward. There were discussions underway already. To transition that two a home, the software service runs on, all of those are being looked into. This will not fall by the wayside. Is on the radar of TPL and counsel and the folks involved in improving. We will have updates on that either from GPO directly or at the string Spring meeting as information is forthcoming there. That is the list of our new business.

I missed the most , the one session that counsel got to do that wasn't just about business. It was actually about partnerships and people who share our content issue on Wednesday afternoon. S Hartnett will talk about our shared obsession . >> Slight correction for the record, S Hartnett was on Tuesday afternoon. Wednesday afternoon has not happened yet . [ Laughter ].

Hours session yesterday afternoon was on the broad theme of driving new connections to the FDLP. I like that active verb to drive. We are not passively sit back and wondering what connections we might have to other communities. We are trying to make some of those connections happen. The group we decided to connect with at this time are people who live and work with congressional papers. Congressional papers are the professionals who love them. We were lucky to hear from three different speakers.

The first was an archivists from the Society of American archivists, congressional papers Roundtable. That specific group is one we would like to watch closely. Daniel Emery link provided a wonderful overview of some of the challenges of working with congressional pay price papers collection. I think it was in 2009, 19 senators leaving office. 18 of them had designated a repository. It did not hurt for many of us to be reminded that our institutions may have a congressional members or more than one congressional member papers in a. So check with respect to collections, check with your archives, right in your institution.

Next, we heard from when it seemed clear, long time member of this community and depository librarian about some wonderful projects she has done around congressional papers including a unique build of labor guides about Hawaii's congressional delegation. Using the brainpower and good work of LIS students. Then the closer was Dr. J Wyatt from the bird center at Shepherd University. Also, the current president of the Association of centers for a session of Congress which is the Association of 40 institutional members including such factors as the Dirksen Center and someone.

J Wyatt talked about a variety of their outreach efforts, both at the Association and at the bird center itself. K-12 groups certainly, and history day, state history competitions as well. Also a unique collaborative online exhibit about Congress during LBJ's great Society. The Congress of the great Society. So one of the things that was a great little line from J Wyatt's talk was that as one of their objectives at the bird center is to see more frequent and varied use of their holdings. To see more frequent and varied use of their holdings. I thought that was a wonderful phrase to think of with our depository collections as well. As Scott was encouraging us with preservation partners, I am going to go home and see if I might be a FIT-NET partner I think what part S would like us is to go home and look to see if we are ready our repository for congressional papers at our FDLP location and see what kind of connections we can make with the archivists so close was, either right there or perhaps in our metro area and so on.

Then my question to this community is: what should be the next target group that we reach out to to drive new connections? We would like to invite stakeholders from a different community and practice next fall for this conference. While not losing our connections to congressional papers archivists. So, think about that! >> As folks have mentioned, counsel had them working sessions morning.

You will hear more about what we decided. There will be formal recommendations and commendations. I am very pleased. It seems like we have a long list of commendations in a very short list of recommendations, which makes me happy. And makes GPO staff happy as well. I wanted to let folks know that the one that we will pursue is a recommendation that SuDoc policies refer to an public documents are also made available publicly on the FDLP website along with SuDoc policy. It's a recommendation that they are need be public when they were created and they are being referred, updated as needed, approved and they will be posted as going for. That's what folks are moving up. We will be recommending that, but note that it is already in the works. We will do that as a matter of course. It was a good suggestion, actually from outside of counsel. So thank you for that. Of marijuana to others that we are thinking about that we probably will it seems like we were leaning toward not recommendations but thinking about it in the spring. Especially around the public library's report and our outreach and work with public libraries, how we might be able to support our public. The other thing we did was elected new chair who will take office in June 2017. I am very pleased to announce that that will be caring rests. [ Applause ] .

>> One of the commendations that is under very long list is a great thing queue to GPO.

For putting together the handouts page. We heard 90% complete every handout and slide deck from the conference is on the page. That will get updated. There she is. This week going forward, we think that's great. Here is an example of a great handout, and if a graphic piece about preservation and lifecycle management from David, I think, put this together. It's on the handout page. So go to the handout page and look for these things. These are great resources.

Are there any other items of business, things that we talked about with counsel before we move to open discussions about the issues that we have all race?

We have one commendation here. On behalf of counsel, to Scott Matheson for leading a wonderful conference. We appreciate all of your hard work, leadership, and guidance. [ Applause ]. Thank you. It is a privilege to get to work with these very, very smart, energetic people. I told the other day I said I think I'm okay because I wrote that into an interview wrapup, but pretty much cut you guys to good programs. So thank you all for your hard work as well. >> We have done this recap, we have talked about what the issues are. Of would like to talk about next she can take and thing collaboration opportunities. Really some concrete things. What will you do when you get home, maybe not tomorrow but next week. What are you going to do that is different because you were here. What did you learn? What are you hoping to accomplish in the next couple months? The next year? All of that. We will do the usual we will have from counsel first if you have ideas. Courseware open to questions or other feedback at this time. DVD brief if you're coming to microphone. Also, you can send us an email or contact us.

Counsel?

Business jumpshot University of Nebraska, omission of. Omaha. Next week I'm going to block out an hour just to walk up and down our ranges. I'm certain I can identify several shelves, just two or three or four shelves of material that might really work well for us to be able to offer to be a digital steward. With our size of staff, facility, equipment and everything else, I can't go really big. But I could probably identify of the really nice things that we can help out with an Omaha. When it leaps to mind first is our Federal civil Defense staff how to build a bomb shelter the original couple copy of Bert the turtle. We have a few things. Even smaller places might have some things that may be something that they can to. That's my commitment XFree, at least an hour walking up and down, trying to IPO and see if we could potentially do these things ourselves. >> Melissa Bernstein, University of Utah. The law library. I've already spoken to my colleague here from the main campus library to try and figure out along the lines of what Jim said. Are there things that Marriott has much more space, a larger collection than us. To see if there are things that they may be able to commit to. I fully intend on putting up my colleagues at other libraries within the state, some of them I know have rather robust collections to see if they might be able to volunteer to be stewards as well.

So that's a good example of collaboration. I would actually even say, Jim, if you are scanning a relatively small number of libraries, you might be able to go into partnership with one of your other local repositories to create a single project were several repositories good feeding into one GPO. Maybe work in other areas as well. There are two repositories on my campuses as well. I contacted Melody and say what can we do? >> Maryanne Mesa cut University of Iowa. There are a couple of things I'm going to do. I will be sending a message out to my Iowa selective libraries suggesting that they would be good hosts for GPO on the go staff. I have already had a brief conversation with one of the outreach librarians at GPO inviting them to my library. I already told them that Iowa has cold winters but I have been assured that they can handle it. Everything that I have already started but now have motivation to complete is our preservation steward titles. During the regional meeting last night, I got an idea for another title that I could add. It is one of those pigments. Big ones. I'm going to finish that one up next week. >> Karen Ross, University of Arkansas, Little Rock. Primary planning to go to a meeting when I get home next week because we have an Arkansas Consortium documents meeting next Friday. One of the things I'm looking at doing is welcoming a new capacity Tuesday Consortium. Arkansas Baptist College has joined the consortium. [ Applause ]. I'm happy to say that Arkansas is bringing someone in instead of losing someone for a change. >> Laurie Thornton, New Mexico. I'm going to go back right away, my staff will be so thrilled because I'm going to be giving them an new project.

I'm going to investigate from beginning to end our congressional delegation. I'm going to get that stuff up online in a little guide. Wow! I had no idea when I started thinking about it, I thought that this information our state needs. I am going to collaborate with our legislative Council library and the Supreme Court law library so we can get this done together for the benefit of New Mexico.

Excellent! >> Gear assembly. What you going to do with you microfiche scanner? [ Laughter ]. >> I'm not escaping from this. I'm going to go back and look at condition of our microfiche. We had that discussion last night about possible vinegar syndrome at some library are seen. We will see what might be those next collection that might be worth moving into scanning and talking more with GPL about our being a FIT-NET partner as well. >> I will let the rest of counsel off the hook for the time being keep thinking. I will open it up to the audience. What did you take away? What did you think was great, especially that counsel sessions that counsel did not see. What will you do when you get home? Their folks coming to the microphone. >> Online folks, please chime in as well. We are happy to hear especially what you thought.

The hail is a library of Pennsylvania. Two things that I am taking with this is looking at our collections like the rest of counsel has said, to see what we can do as a trusted partner because our collection goes way back. We might be able to put things in our fault that would make it protected. The other thing you have not really mentioned is about the FDLP exchange as a regional I'm very excited about this pic it's going to make my job so much easier because right now I have a Facebook page to have people do this. Not everybody can get the Facebook. I think this will be a great program to go forward to make it easier for me to look at what is out there that people do want to get rid of. For other selectors to see what other selectives are offering out there as well across the board. Because even if they put it on my Facebook page, not everybody goes and looks here. I think it's going to be a great program to see across the board where people are offering. Especially, as we become these partners we can see if I have most of them that I'm missing or if the pages are coming out, this will allow me to look and see what other people are offering that I can fill in those gaps.
Excellent. Thank you very much. That's actually on our list of commendations. The exchange is a great new tool. I will let folks know that there are some issues that came up during the exchange. That is a tool that might integrate or be able to realize the dream of one place to shop for everything. We are talking to some of those folks and thinking about that also. Indiana has a new tool that they have just started using. We are working with folks on how we can bring those tools into the FDLP exchange on a national level tech back

Just a reminder if you want to chat through the WebEx session, for most of the top and click on check. That will open the chatbox. You can get out your comment for a question to all participants.

Not infant condition. I have is very available I had a draft and send them along. It may be possible for preservation steward student pay the shipping. All of these things are dependent on the tools and the policies and our moving forward with the collection management.

Of the comments? >> Beth Harper University of Wisconsin, Madison. A couple of things I plan to do when I get back now that I'm retiring soon. I went to document more of my processes and thought processes in the decision I made. That was brought home really well at this morning's presentation on transition. I spent a lot of time when I started trying to figure out why did they do things this way? It took me several years to figure that out. It would be so much easier for the next person to to see it laid out., I hope at long last, maybe our digitizer-projects can be ingested into FT. It's a CIA's. >> When we were talking about numbers preservation sewers and print copies that will be necessary and the number four and whether that is the appropriate number for each title. There are products a project I was thinking about doing for literally a year. Greta and I sat in the back lobby and talked about looking at how many times the federal register gets excited which would be printed citation so a printed access to the Federal Register. I think I need to go into that now. I am saying it out loud to get it in the record. It is what we call accountability. [Laughter]. So I'm going to go home and start working on that.

Sherry Lassiter, University of California, Santa Barbara. One of the sessions I was glad to attend was the preservation of federal digital information preservation. Those four words in some order which was a presentation on the burgeoning efforts to really coordinate, not just that we need to capture on digital, but would Howery be doing this. What is the bigger picture on how this content is going to be collected? Stored, eventually made acceptable? My immediate action item is to get on the list serve for their project. ISI had some interesting conversations with folks about small-scale for digital collections, small scale web harvesting needs, ideas, are opportunities in this area. I'm excited to go home and work on the.
I wonder if that might not be a group that we might not want to reach out for our word driving connections for next time. Folks who do web harvesting, even IA, who are using archivists allow. That would be an interesting idea to hear from GPL and some folks that do similar work.

>> Don't be shy. We will listen to counsel gun. But as you think of things, [ Indiscernible ] I would like to put in a shameless plug for [ Laughter ].

With regard to succession planning in such, I ran across this issue myself. One day, I was actually hired originally is the same local government that library. When the federal tax coordinator position came up, they did not fill it. So guess who was now gifted with a collection that in some ways made no sense to me whatever. After putting together some kind of a collection policy, I was asked to actually make a presentation to the FDLP Academy about collection development policy. One of the things I stated was if you do not have a collection development policy that has this, put some kind of a statement in their. At some point, you will be the went along the way is there. This is a roundabout way of saying that we are talking about preservation, we are talking about preserving digitally, and print. One of the things we need to consider is preserving the institutionalism and knowledge of our respective institutions and the group is all. We have the FDLP Academy which has started up in the last few years make that also ever positive for the institutionalism that you may have. Take this knowledge with you when you retire. But everyone else from your experience.

Thank you. James Jacob Stanford University.

No specific highlights but I always appreciate coming here and sharing the docs nerdiness with this knowledgeable and energetic folks. [ Laughter ]. I like it that we come together is a physical entity, not virtually necessarily. I did have a shameless plug for you congressional nerds. Go to every CRS report.com. There is a new website have. I have posted a it. There is a bipartisan group who are putting on every CRS report.

Thanks.

Thanks James. I also want to acknowledge. I asked James to specifically go to a meeting and report back to me what you heard. You graciously did that. Thank you. >> California State University Pergamum first-time attendee. I went to think Amy Quinn and Chris Brown further sessions on both who and what's happening on your library and downsizing your collection. It's nice to see the FDLP family and as a first time attending seen people with similar challenges. A few of the takeaways I got from this meeting are we so you can supplement material that you are being asked to [ Indiscernible ]. Saying yes if you getting rid of this and how my going to be purchasing it in a digital format and how to provide access to that information. Also that Amy had reinforcer we make sure that we are advocates for collection and make sure that we are that person and that library is always advocating that this information is not only needed but should be kept both and a weighted, sustainable and for future generations. I went to the FDLP family.

Thank you. And welcome. [Applause].

Daniel Cornwall, Alaska State Library. I think one of the highlights is the poster sessions which I think is the second time had been. It was very nice to be able to some minutes here and there and see what was available. One of the ones that most impressed me was when cleaners Hawaii to Arizona poster where they dug through the Hawaii that to their data, realize that there interline at library loans were going to Arizona and was disproportionally large. They asked themselves why this might be. The largest driver they identified with a catalog collection. [Laughter]. So please, to the extent that you had to this resources you can concubine catalog. Our catalog collection is the use collection.

I will put on my tech services hat. I will say there's a lot more copies than they used to be. If you have back onto your tax collection for a while, say 10 years. This huge collection that had to be shipped off-site. For institutions like my did pick lot of money to have that store. Please make use of their.

Sandy McAninch, University of cannot Kentucky. This is taking the conversation in a different direction. From the sites regional meeting, I was one of wants to comment that FT says FED CIS is not quite rich enough to have things to discharge. I wonder there has been any progress moving all of that rich digital content on the permanent server, onto governmental. I did not get to go to that session state information may have been provided. But I wonder if FED CIS is going to ingest that since a lot of things that we could look at discarding.

I see the GPO chatting among themselves. Will get a few minutes to decide okay.

Cindy Atkin, GPL. Did something that we look that. I know the development plan went up a little bit late for us to download and read before this week's conference. But part of the plan is to look at the permanent server and to identify what content can be migrated and marketings has been working on a project plan to get that started.

Thank you.

No guarantee on the time frame.

But we are looking at it and the plan calls [Indiscernible -- multiple speakers]. It's here.

Folks is a lot of pages. This is a next step for all of us. Go home and the pet from the site.

The plan calls to investigate that and do pilot and Mark is working on the project plan to develop.
Hello, my name is Jacqueline Elders from Arkansas Baptist College. I'm so excited. I now know what all the abbreviations mean! [Applause]. FDLP, GPO, all of those! I have all this is and now I have starting point. I'm so excited to be connected to Ms. Erin Rush. I will be needing a [Indiscernible] for next week's meeting. But she is right around the corner so I am so excited now I have a stout point. It all makes sense. I'm glad I came. [Applause].

Excellent. Good job. Just a quick plug. There is a new depository coordinator packet, info packet on the FDLP said. There are great summary, great online courses in the FDLP Academy that were made available in a review. You can actually, any of us in minute review, go through those videos and you can see what the concurrent roles are. What is this think about core, those things that bring? There are no rules. The rules change over time. It's worth going through the new depository coronary coordinator,

I am collecting business cards from everybody [Laughter]. >> Tom Fish Reicher, always remember if you are selected for your original is a good point of contact.

You can also always ask GPL. Supposed to somebody. Don't grope around in the dark like I had to for a while. Ask someone. Someone has an answer for you. Don't be afraid to ask for me is of the information without here in this community. One of the reasons we want to keep this program going and keep this community:

And why we like to keep meeting in person in the fall. >> I am not seeing comments from counsel. There is no one standing at the microphone. Is there anybody online with comments or questions? Counsel, have I forgotten anything? GPO, here comes Cindy. >> [Laughter]. >> Cindy Atkin, GPO. I just want to thank counsel, Scott, and the rest of counsel for a wonderful three days of meetings and discussion. It has been a great jumping off point for further discussion and a lot of issues have come to the fore. A lot of things for us to think about it GPO. Thank you all for your hard work for this conference as well as all of you for attending and staying until the very last day.

Thank you. Thank you Cindy. [Applause]. >> All that remains is for me to officially close the depository library meeting and federal depository conference for fall 2016. We will see while virtually in the spring, just after-tax they. Then again back here next fall. Thank you all for attending. [Applause]. [event concluded]
