- Questions

PURL = Persistent Uniform Resource Locator

- PURLs redirect users to content
- Began use in 1998
- <http://purl.access.gpo.gov/GPO/LPS####>
(old standard)
- <http://purl.fdlp.gov/GPO/FDLP####>
(old standard)
- <https://purl.fdlp.gov/GPO/gpo####>
(current standard)
- Currently have over 240,000 PURLs

Aim of PURLs

Persistently link to content described in the catalog record

Expectation of PURLs

PURLs link to content that is archived and complete

Type of content

Monograph, Serial, IR, Collection

Other factors

Serial – Publication schedule

IR - Update frequency

Stability of location

How the digital file(s) are rendered natively
(Multiple parts? eBook? Serial issues?)

Functionality of digital file(s) if GPO archives
the content on GPO's server

Any Digital Access Partner agreement?

Is the content already in a Web Archive? (Pros and cons to Web Archive content)

Monograph takeaways

- PURLs for monographs tend to redirect users to PDFs (stable format, captures graphics), which are archived for permanent public access.
- Content may or may not be superseded at a later point in time. You will need to identify outdated/superseded PDFs and weed them from your online collection.
- Even monographs may be digitally rendered in multiple parts, which complicates how GPO staff route the PURL.
- When a Digital Access Partnership exists between an agency and GPO, GPO routes PURLs to the agency website.
 - No partnership? PURLS route to GPO's server or govinfo.

Serial. A resource issued in successive parts, usually having numbering, that has no predetermined conclusion. Serials include periodicals; newspapers; annuals (reports, yearbooks, etc.); the journals, memoirs, proceedings and transactions of societies; and monographic series. Serials are not published items containing collections of works.

Example: Congressionally mandated annual report from an executive branch agency

FDLP Electronic Collection Archive

You have reached the Federal Depository Library Program Electronic Collection (FDLP/EC) Archive. This archive assures ongoing access to publications in the FDLP/EC. Access to publications in the archive is available through GPO's suite of cataloging and locator services, including the Catalog of U.S. Government Publications (CGP). Archived copies of publications are retrieved in the event that publications are no longer available from the original publishing agency site.

Serial takeaways

- PURLs directing to agency websites allows users to have access to the latest issue, but:
 - Perhaps only the latest edition is available there
 - Perhaps you want to direct users to an individual issue and not the larger series
- Multiple PURLs may exist in the record to route users to different portions of the serial
- GPO may set up a routine to capture as many issues of a series while the location remains stable, but the agency publication schedule is often unknown

Serial takeaways

Serials are cataloged upon discovery at GPO. Staff monitor the titles for updates or cessation. But some records may not be touched for years because the resource is stable over time. This may make it difficult for you to discover relevant serial titles for your collection if you are not seeing it on a New Titles List.

Suggestions:

- CGP search for relevant serial digital content
- Look at the List of Classes for serial titles content

Integrating resource. A bibliographic resource that is added to or changed by means of updates that do not remain discrete and are integrated into the whole. Integrating resources may be finite or continuing. Examples include updating loose-leaf publications, updating databases, and updating websites.

Example: Updating databases and updating websites, such as the Congressional Research Service (CRS) Reports

Constitution Day

In Celebration of Constitution Day

September 17

On September 17, 1787, the United States Constitution was signed by 39 of the 55 delegates attending the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia. Delegates from 12 states had gathered at the Convention with the purpose of revising the nation's first written charter, the Articles of Confederation. Instead, they discarded the nation's first system of government and created a new one they believed would provide the United States with a strong national government to deal with the many challenges of the Confederation. The Constitution was subsequently ratified by each of the original 13 states.

About this collection

This collection includes World War II posters and maps from the Military Collection of the State Archives of North Carolina.

The State of North Carolina provided over 370,000 men and women to serve in all theaters of the war and in all branches of the military. Just as in the First World War, the largest number of North Carolinians served in the United States Army, but sizeable numbers served in the Navy, Army Air Corps, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard. On the home front, tens of thousands of Tar Heel civilians aided the war effort by working in vital war industries, purchasing war bonds and stamps, producing food, working in important state and federal positions, and by working in various family and troop supported activities such as the United Services Organization (USO) and the American Red Cross.

A finding aid for the complete World War II collection is available at <http://archives.ncdcr.gov/Public/FindingAids/MilitaryFindingAids.aspx>.

NCpedia's website has more information about North Carolina and World War II at <http://ncpedia.org/category/subjects/world-war-ii>.

Best practices for digital content outside of your catalog

- Use PURLs whenever you can (ask us to create them if they are not available!)
 - Agencies often put ‘hot content’ on their home page – but that content rotates out over time so your direct link may go bad
 - PURLs for monographs usually direct users to a discrete publication
 - PURLs for serials often direct users to a page with multiple issues
 - PURLs to IRs are great!
- PURLs direct users to primary resources 😊
- FDLP Guide to Social Media - <https://www.fdlp.gov/promotion/federal-depository-library-program-guide-to-social-media>

Why use PURLs?

Capture usage statistics:

- Drives collection development
- Drives which tools you use to make the content discoverable by your patrons
- Document the need to stay in the FDLP

More stable in the long run

That said... broken PURLs?

- Agencies redesign their websites (for the better)
- http:// URLs more likely to be broken
- Additional IT security temporarily closed a port that lead to GPO Permanent directory pages
- The content is there, but your library may need to install security certificates
- Internet Archive does routine maintenance during normal workdays
- Agencies may not follow http protocol – if you see a cute page that says “Oops – the content you are looking for isn’t here”, that may not be a proper 404 error so our link checker thinks everything is okay

Link checker?

- Slow down your link checker. If a PDF is slow to load, it may give a false error report.
- Timing. GPO runs scheduled link checkers, but it may vary from your schedule.
- Send us your link validator reports because all link validators are different and pick up on different issues.

Tip – Send your link checker’s IP address to GPO and we’ll route it to a different server so your link checker isn’t reported on your PURL Usage Report.

- PURLs leading to lost content are routed to a PURL History Page, and the catalog record is updated.

- URLs found here can be used by librarians to track down where the content might reside on non-official sites.

Wrap up – broken PURLs and lost content

- The library community will always have a challenge permanently linking to digital content.
- Some agencies are better at displaying content now: better functionality, better user experience, better understanding of archiving.
- Report broken PURLs using askGPO (unless you see a PURL History Page).
- Fun fact – Content is rarely lost anymore. Some official entity has likely captured it, and we can redirect the PURL to it.

Changing gears - decisions you have to make for your digital collection

	Catalog?	LibGuide?	Course Guide?	Share with SME?
Monographs • Supersede?
Serials • Multiple URLs? • Latest edition only?
Integrated Resources • Web archive content?
Collections • Wait for granular cataloging?

Some questions to ask yourself

- For cataloging, will you use a vendor for catalog records?
- Manually review newly-cataloged online resources?
- Mix of the above?
- Are you retroactively developing a digital collection?
- If you don't catalog your digital or online resources, how will you identify resources of interest?
- How to share new resources with SMEs for integration in non-OPAC tools?
- How to monitor for ceased titles?
- How will you weed digital resources? Are there steps you can take now to proactively plan for future digital weeding projects?

New Titles

The New Titles page is an easy way to find all the latest documents added to the Catalog of U.S. Government Publications (CGP). It provides access to new documents in many different formats, such as print documents, electronic documents, or eBooks. It also provides information on documents that are still in-process. Users can look for documents in a particular range of time by clicking on specific timeframes, such as Last Seven Days or Last Three Months.

New Titles All new titles	Last 7 days	Last Two Weeks	This Month	Last Month	Last Three Months
New Electronic Titles Only new titles that are available online	Last 7 days	Last Two Weeks	This Month	Last Month	Last Three Months

New Serial Titles Only new continuing titles (journals, annuals, and periodicals)	Last 7 days	Last Two Weeks	This Month	Last Month	Last Three Months
New Integrated Resource (IR) Titles Only new documents such as archived Government websites, databases, loose leafs, etc.	Last 7 days	Last Two Weeks	This Month	Last Month	Last Three Months
New FDLP Web Archive Titles Only new archived Government websites within the scope of the Federal Depository Library Program (FDLP)	Last 7 days	Last Two Weeks	This Month	Last Month	Last Three Months
Newly Ceased Titles Continuing/integrating resources that no longer have new issues produced or are no longer updated	Last 7 days	Last Two Weeks	This Month	Last Month	Last Three Months

New Electronic Titles (NET) Monthly Archive Reports

Why are these records on the New Electronic Titles page?

- You see LSCM's normal FDLP and C&I output
- GPO may have done maintenance on an older record:
 - The agency website may have gone dead so the record may have been updated to point to the new location of the content.
 - The title of the publication may have ceased or been changed.
 - More digitized content may have been found, and we are capturing it bibliographically.
 - New versions of resources may have been discovered.

Wrapping up

- Cataloging practices have evolved over time.
- Digital content's online delivery has evolved over time.
- Policies and technologies to capture digital content, and our confidence in the output, have evolved over time.
- User expectations of “where that link will take them and what they can expect to find there” have evolved over time.
- GPO has limits to staffing & budgets just like libraries do!

= GPO is exploring new ways to bibliographically describe and link to permanent digital content in an increasingly robust and growing digital landscape.
