

Depository Collection Management

FDLP Depository Operation Training Series

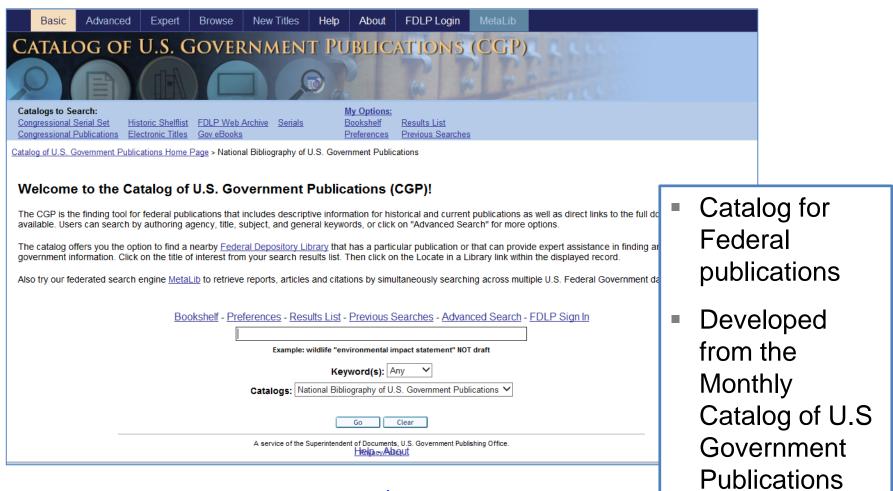

Learning Objectives

Participants will be able to:

- Identify the different methods for weeding a depository collection.
- Identify required collections for the FDLP.
- Demonstrate knowledge of collection development practices.
- Describe weeding of depository materials through Supersession, Substitution, and the 5-Year Rule
- Explain what a selective housing agreement (SHA) is and to identify proper use of SHAs

New Titles

The New Titles page is an easy way to find all the latest documents added to the Catalog of U.S. Government Publications (CGP). It provides access to ne wdocuments in many different formats, such as print documents, electronic documents, or eBooks. It also provides information on documents that are still in-process. Users can look for documents in a particular range of time by clicking on specific timeframes, such as Last Seven Days or Last Three Months.

New Electronic Titles (NET) Monthly Archive Reports

New Electronic Titles (NET) Monthly Archive Reports are generated from data collected from the Catalog of U.S. Government Publications (CGP). Monthly NET Reports are made available by the middle of the following month (e.g. January's monthly NET report will be available by mid-February).

Beginning in April 2005, data from the CGP was used to generate monthly NET reports that included new records and records that had been recently updated. In the Septem ber 2006 NET report, the methodology to generate these reports changed to include only new records. Development to refine the NET report format is ongoing.

The current NET reports will be made available in HTML_format with links in the titles to the bibliographic records and in Comma Separated Value (CSV) format, which is compatible with most spreadsheet so fivare. A service of the Superintendent of Documents, US. Government Publishing Office.

Digital Depository Libraries

The digital depository can be an excellent model for the FDLP library with limited budgets, space, and staff to process, house, and maintain tangible depository materials.

GPO always recommends cataloging online resources and/or providing subject guides of other finding aids to help patrons be aware of the online resources.

ø

Digital Depository Libraries

- 1. New libraries who join the FDLP as a digital depository
- 2. Existing FDLP libraries who change their selection profile to stop receiving anything tangible and also weed their tangible collection over time to nothing
- 3. Existing FDLP libraries who change their selection profile to stop receiving anything tangible but keep some tangible material in the collection

Why be a digital depository?

When the public sees this

They can expect to find excellent government information services and standards, regardless of the information formats available locally

Online Depository Collections

- Online publications cataloged in the Catalog of U.S. Government Publications (CGP) (required)
- govinfo (formerly FDsys) (required)
- GPO's MetaLib
- Agency Subscription Databases the library has signed up to access
- Official content partnerships (including content in "hybrid" partnerships) (required)
- The FDLP Basic Collection (required)

Online Only (EL) Item Numbers

Why libraries should select online only (EL) item numbers:

- Receive cataloging records for EL items when purchased from vendor
- "Locate in a Library" feature in the CGP
- Use of various collection tools is easier
- Sometimes agencies decide to switch formats

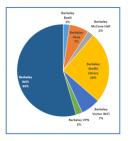

FDLP PURL Usage Report

Webinar Understanding PURL Usage at Your Library...

Collection Management by Format

Benefits of keeping and/or selecting tangible:

- Some publications are preferred by users in paper format.
- Paper may offer more security for preservation and access.
- A core collection, with historical or current materials in tangible formats, may benefit the needs of many users.
- Some content is not online.
- Online access features may not be user-friendly.
- Some online resources are not official like their print counterpart.
- Some agency Web sites only provide access to the current issue of online resources.

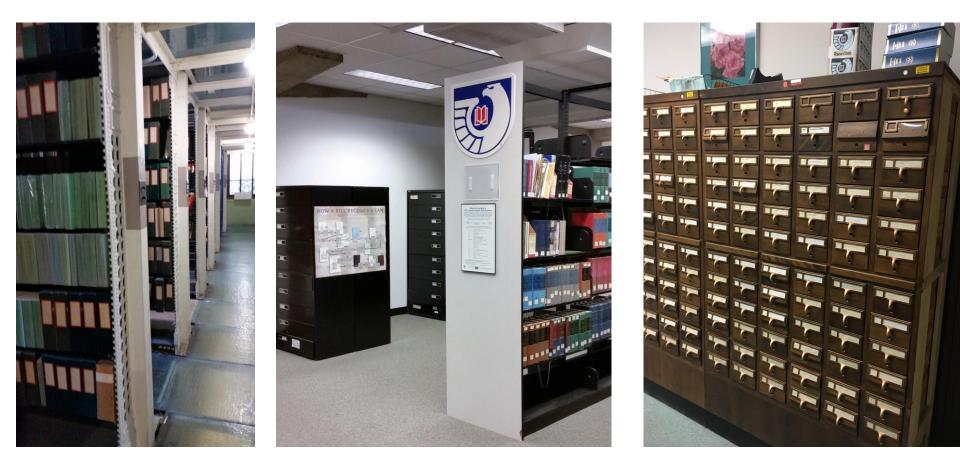

Collection Development Policies

The following are ways to identify and document the Federal government information needs of the congressional district or local area:

- Analyze demographic and socio-economic data about the community served.
- Gain knowledge from subject matter expertise of library colleagues.
- Review reference questions.
- Track depository resources used in answering questions.
- Review daily news sources.
- Review other library Web pages or guides.
- Employ library user surveys that include questions about Federal government information needs.
- Gain knowledge from participation in library associations or other library networks.
- Review data about patron collection use within the library building (e.g., in-house use or circulation).
- Review use of PURLs from your catalog and library Web pages.

U.S. GOVERNMENT PUBLISHING OFFICE FDLP PARTNER

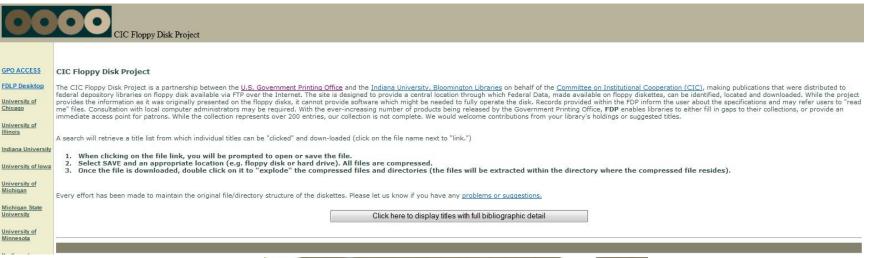

In partnership with the Government Printing Office, The University of Iowa Libraries has collected U.S. federal government information since 1884. This includes nearly 1500 posters promoting services, programs, and initiatives by agencies such as the Works Progress Administration, the War Mobilization Office, and the Environmental Protection Agency. Although the bulk of the UI collection spans the 1970s through the 1990s, it also includes items from pre-WWII through the present. These posters provide a graphic representation of priorities of a given presidential administration and of the culture at a discrete point in time.

Repair/Replacement

Unusual Circumstances

• Disaster (Response) Plans

– Are you prepared to react if something happens?

- Contingency Plans
 - Used when access to depository collections is going to be or has been affected

Disasters

Any disruption in access to the collection needs to be reported to GPO and your regional.

We recommend you have a disaster policy in place which accounts for depository materials.

O&S staff are available if you have any questions.

Moving & Temporary Disruptions in Service

When depository libraries undergo planned remodeling, undertake a significant move, or otherwise find their public service operations disrupted for an extended period of time, library staff are required to submit a contingency plan to the GPO's LSCM Office of Outreach & Support.

Contingency Plans

Contingency plans typically include:

- Institution name and depository number
- Expected beginning and ending dates of closure
- Contact name at your institution for depository questions
- Extent of the curtailment of service
- Before moving depository material off site, contact GPO outlining how the library staff will provide access to depository material stored off site. A contingency plan may be needed.

Ņ

Contingency Plans (ctd.)

- Alternative strategies to be employed to fulfill Government information requests, including where the next closest depository is located. This may include:
 - Searching online to see if an electronic equivalent is available to use in lieu of a tangible copy housed in a temporary housing location
 - Gaining assistance from your regional depository library and other depositories to acquire copies of publications, if this process is more timely than retrieval from a temporary storage location
 - Arranging to set up public access computers and microfiche readers and printers in a new location
 - Notifying library users where they may find alternate access to Federal depository publications in all formats and related reference and other services

Contingency Plans (ctd.)

- Techniques for notifying primary clientele, other libraries (both depository and non-depository), and the general public of changes in service
- How your library will continue to check in new depository receipts or if shipments need to be temporarily halted
