GPO history

Q: Why do GPO staff geek out every March 4th to celebrate an event that took place in 1861?

Oh yeah.

This guy also got inaugurated on that day.

GPO History

- Prior to GPO, printing was performed on contract by newspapers and other private printers.
- The mid 19th century witnessed high costs, ineffective service, and repeated scandals of contract printing.
- In response, Congress established GPO
 - GPO opened doors on March 4, 1861

GPO History

For a history of printing operations, read
“150 Years at GPO.”

For a general history, read “Keeping America Informed.”

We’ve grown a bit since 1861!

GPO now produces:

- Online databases of congressional and agency documents
- eBooks
- Passports and smart identification cards with electronic chips carrying biometric data
- Print products on recycled substrates using vegetable oil-based inks
- Public presence not only on the Web but on Twitter, YouTube, Facebook, and LinkedIn.

GPO History – Online Milestones

- "GPO Access Law"
 - Government Printing Office Electronic Information Access Enhancement Act of 1993 enacted (Public Law 103-40)
 - GPO Access service launched; available by subscription, free to depositories (1994)
 - GPO Access free to all users (1995)
- GPO's Federal Digital System (FDsys)
 - FDsys launched (2009)
 - GPO Access retired (2012)
 - FDsys has over 50 collections from all three branches of the Federal government
- govinfo.gov official site (2018)

FDLP History

- Established by Congress to ensure that the American public has access to its Government's information (Title 44, United States Code, Chapter 19, § 1901-1916)
<https://www.govinfo.gov/content/pkg/USCODE-2016-title44/pdf/USCODE-2016-title44-chap19.pdf>
- The FDLP is based upon these three principles:
 - Federal Government information products within scope of the FDLP shall be made available to Federal depository libraries;
 - Federal depository libraries shall be located in each State and U.S. Congressional District to make Government information products more widely available; and
 - Federal Government information in all media shall be available for free use by the general public.

FDLP History

- Act of 1813: Authorized distribution of one copy of House and Senate Journals to select university and state libraries and historical institutions

Who is in the FDLP?

Over 1,100 libraries of all types, located throughout the U.S.A. and its territories, are members of the FDLP

<http://arcg.is/1mmp9Ep>

Why is the FDLP important?

- The FDLP identifies, catalogs, and disseminates documents created by Federal government agencies, no matter what the format. This system provides order for government information and makes it visible.
- FDLP libraries provide free, public access to government information to everyone, promoting engagement and knowledge.
- The FDLP's rich collections of historic and current content are unique and important research material for all fields of study.
- The network of FDLP librarians and staff is an unparalleled source of expertise.

Fulfilling Madison's Vision: The Federal Depository Library Program

Core Mission of FDLP

Keeping America Informed

Mission has not changed with digital info, but evolved:

- Commitment to providing free, public access to the tangible publications distributed and online or digital resources cataloged by GPO
- Provide assistance with depository resources to users
- Tangible resources remain Federal property and must be maintained and handled accordingly
- Online or digital FDLP resources may be made visible through library catalogs, Web pages, or other means

Regional Depository Libraries

In general:

- Receive at least one tangible format of all publications made available to depositories and they are required to retain those items in perpetuity (with some exceptions) – AKA “comprehensive collection”
- Serve as liaisons between the selective libraries in the state (or region) and LSCM
- Provide ILL, provide reference services, manage the publication withdrawal and substitution process within their state or region
- Provide consultation, coordinate planning, and offer other services to selective depositories in their regions
- Designated by U.S. Senators as regional depositories
 - Limit of two regionals per state. Most states have only one and a few states are served by regional depositories in neighboring states

Selective Depository Libraries

Customize their depository collection

This is achieved by:

- Selecting suitable materials for their users
- Retaining materials for at least 5 years
- Substituting tangible material with online equivalents (if desired)
- Retaining materials beyond the required 5 years as appropriate

How can a library join the FDLP?

- FDLP libraries can be designated by U.S. Senators or U.S. House Representatives
 - Limits: 2 regionals per state (designated by Senators); 2 selectives per Congressional district (although redistricting means a district may contain more than two at any given time); 2 selectives designated by Senators per state
- or “by-law” under specific sections of Title 44, U.S.C.
 - Unlimited number allowed
- Different library types added to program
 - Libraries in executive departments (1895)
 - Military academies (1895)
 - Land grant colleges (1907)
 - Federal agencies (1962)
 - Highest appellate courts of the states (1972)
 - Law libraries (1978)

FDLP Website

Best place for:

- FDLP news feed and announcements
- Legal Requirements and Guidance
- Operational tools
 - DSIMS, Item Lister, WebTech Notes, etc.
- GPO Training/Webinar info
- Promotional materials
