Promoting Materials in a Digital World - Part 1 Chat Log

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:14 AM I really feel like GPO is missing the podcast arena, with all the podcast-friendly voices y'all have!

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:14 AM
And I'm not a podcast person either. But I'd listne.

from Susanne Caro to everyone: 11:15 AM I'd love to do one called What the Doc? that is a deep dive into the history of a doc from David Isaak to everyone: 11:15 AM

If you do not see a headset icon next to your name in the Participants panel, your audio is likely not connected. Everyone's set up is different, but you should be able to find an audio button where you can select your speakers. Alternatively, you can exit and rejoin the virtual room.

from Susanne Caro to everyone: 11:18 AM
How do you promote through teaching and research?
and
How do you enhance efficiency and manage to work at larger scale to make larger impact?

from Susanne Caro to everyone: 11:19 AM https://libguides.jeffco.edu/veterans

from Brianna King to everyone: 11:19 AM Yes, I love to add QR codes in my displays when I can

from Susanne Caro to everyone: 11:20 AM https://law.indiana.libguides.com/govdocsref

from Marcos Corona to everyone: 11:20 AM where do you all get your display inspiration from? they look great!

from Daniel Cornwall to everyone: 11:20 AM
I used QR codes linked to catalog searches during our 125th Anniversary. Very low key with a month long in-library display.

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:20 AM Yay JMorgan!

from Daniel Cornwall to everyone: 11:20 AM Chrome can create QR codes for any web page!

from Ronnie Joiner to everyone: 11:21 AM I always use a URL if I use a QR code.

from Ariella Mason to everyone: 11:21 AM
+1 Ronnie

from Susanne Caro to everyone: 11:21 AM I see Ben!

from Andrea Andie Craley to everyone: 11:21 AM
+1 Ronnie

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:21 AM Those stickers had to be taped on. I'm not alone!

from Susanne Caro to everyone: 11:23 AM +1 Charlie, They stuck well on linoleum

from Andrea Andie Craley to everyone: 11:23 AM
We use those FDLP eagle stickers on all our Gov Info print materials - especially since we integrate all our FDLP materials into our collections via LC call number. We found at a community college, it is better not to separate them out by SuDoc

from Brianna King to everyone: 11:23 AM I can't wait to see more America 250 displays.

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:24 AM I mentioned a few years back at a conference that none of mine would stick, and people told me it was me! I'm convinced there was at least a period of time in which the batches of stickers had issues. Because I've never experienced one at three different libraries in different geographical areas that stuck without tape.

from Susanne Caro to everyone: 11:24 AM
60th Anniversary https://library.csustan.edu/government-resources/60th-anniversary

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:24 AM
These are fantastic. One way to get people to read law!

from Marcos Corona to everyone: 11:25 AM excellent idea! thank you!

from Sara Winger to everyone: 11:25 AM
Have you used anything other than QR codes? Our campus is a little hit or miss with us using them.

from Janelle Nash to everyone: 11:26 AM
What tools are libraries using to create the QR codes? Chrome generator or others?

from Ronnie Joiner to everyone: 11:26 AM
This is helpful. Our 100th anniversary is coming up in 2029 and I need ideas for how to promote it.

from Janelle Nash to everyone: 11:26 AM Ben!

from Elissa Lawrence to everyone: 11:26 AM Ben!

from Lisa Pritchard to everyone: 11:26 AM I love those Ben bookmarks!!!!

from JoAnna McCulley to everyone: 11:27 AM Totally agree. Bookmarks are awesome

from Lisa Pritchard to everyone: 11:27 AM I love that Ben, too!

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:27 AM AMAZING.

from JoAnna McCulley to everyone: 11:27 AM More Ben!

from Andrea Andie Craley to everyone: 11:28 AM @Brianna - the Library Associate that works with me in Gov Info has created an "America 250 Spotlight" series, where she has a theme each month for our Gov Info display case to "Celebrate America". We don't have a dedicated America 250 LibGuide yet (maybe in the works), but I've been adding her PDF's she uses to create her displays in a section on our Constitution Day LibGuide

from Lisa Pritchard to everyone: 11:29 AM I like the handouts and will try that.

from Susanne Caro to everyone: 11:29 AM Andrea- please share when it is done!

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:29 AM Zines have been really on the rise. I think there's a good way to dovetail zines and QR codes for spreading gov info.

from Lisa Pritchard to everyone: 11:29 AM
We just created handouts for Emergency Preparedness Month with gov info.

from Brianna King to everyone: 11:29 AM Yes @Andrea I would love to see it!

from Susanne Caro to everyone: 11:30 AM

from Andrea Andie Craley to everyone: 11:30 AM @Janielle - I was using a free Adobe generator tool to create QR codes, but when I found the Chrome tool, I've been using that because it's faster and easier.

from Lisa Pritchard to everyone: 11:31 AM Great idea for a set design that can be reused.

from Elisabeth Garner to everyone: 11:31 AM
The Recycling Codes brochure is great

from Janelle Nash to everyone: 11:31 AM Thanks @Andrea

National hurricane center https://www.nhc.noaa.gov/

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:33 AM
That is so genius. I want one for my own house.

from Susanne Caro to everyone: 11:34 AM
We did something similar with the river rising

from Lisa Pritchard to everyone: 11:34 AM So cool! What a idea on a serious topic.

from Stephanie Ard to everyone: 11:34 AM
I worked at USA for a long time, and this was a great resource!

from Andrea Andie Craley to everyone: 11:34 AM @Charlie - I have no experience with zines, but you've got my interest :)

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:34 AM
You could do FWS stuff too.

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:35 AM

@Andie I saw zines are on the rise. I should say experiencing another surge of popularity. You could even have folding parties as you give out the zines. But the kids think they're cool! Or whatever word they're using these days!

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:35 AM
*say not saw

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:35 AM I didn't know NASA had 3D printables! I love NASA resources.

from Elisabeth Garner to everyone: 11:35 AM
This is great, Anna. You've just reminded me that we have a new Cybersecurity BS program at my university, I could create a digital display in our library with links to diffrent federal departments and how they use cybersecurity

from Ariella Mason to everyone: 11:36 AM +1 Charlie, I did a lot with Zines when I was a teen librarian, definitley popular

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:36 AM Yes! Def ask Ariella your questions on zines!

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:36 AM I made one at a conference where we used each page as our notes for a slide. That was fun as a participant.

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:37 AM I love the buttons I see Rice offering there. Everyone loves a button. Timeless.

from Susanne Caro to everyone: 11:37 AM FDLP Academy session on Zines? (hint hint)

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:37 AM Spring is coming!

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:37 AM
And if you make them digitally, you can use gov images as clip art essentially.

from Lisa Pritchard to everyone: 11:37 AM Really nice, Anna.

from Marcos Corona to everyone: 11:37 AM i think there should be an academy session on designing displays!

from Ariella Mason to everyone: 11:37 AM Best thing I ever did was buy a stapler that let me make Zines in Publisher on full sheets of paper. So much easier and makes formatting much easier

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:38 AM @Marcos I think there is in the Academy!

from Ariella Mason to everyone: 11:38 AM
+1 Marcos, I think a like monthly zoom where we can crowdsource display ideas!

from Marcos Corona to everyone: 11:39 AM Brilliant @Ariella!

from Marcos Corona to everyone: 11:39 AM @Charlie really! I never knew! thank you!

from Ariella Mason to everyone: 11:39 AM

from Kaylee Kern to everyone: 11:48 AM
Thank you for those links, Charlie! I am a pretty new coordinator (just over a year) and I just created my first display. I will definitely check out those links before creating my next one!

from Daniel Cornwall to everyone: 11:48 AM CRS Infographics are often useful.

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:48 AM @Daniel +1

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:48 AM @Kaylee You're welcome! And feel free to keep in touch if you need mentorship or just some feedback!

@Kaylee here is a link to my libguide with a tab of some display examples if you need an idea or two lol: https://libguides.depaul.edu/c.php?g=1470135

from Janelle Nash to everyone: 11:50 AM
How frequently are your teams submitting displays to the Minnesota State University Gov Docs Display Clearinghouse so they can be used to inspire others?

from Andrea Andie Craley to everyone: 11:51 AM Kudos to you all who are able to have your own gov Info or library presence on social media. That has changed at my institution. Anything our library wants to post has to now be planned well ahead and submitted to our campus office of communications to go into their overall queue for the campus overall social media accounts...no more library accounts.

from Kaylee Kern to everyone: 11:52 AM @Marcos, thank you so much! I am always on the lookout for ideas.

from Marcos Corona to everyone: 11:52 AM @Kaylee absolutely! I am too!

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:52 AM @Andie I hated doing things via social media. I would find that a blessing. I'd much rather give students something physical. I think it goes farther. Especially since everything is an algo now.

from Amy Fitch to everyone: 11:53 AM Thank you to everyone sharing links and ideas. I really appreciate it.

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:53 AM Yet again. Student workers being the lifeblood of libraries!

from Andrea Andie Craley to everyone: 11:54 AM @Charlie - not when everything has to get funneled (all marketing) through that office, and it takes over a month to get things in order to promote something...usually it is too late.

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:54 AM @Andie Really?! Even a handout?! Sigh.

from Leslee Stover to everyone: 11:55 AM our library isn't allowed to hang many signs. it makes it hard to make sure patrons know about what's going on!

from Andrea Andie Craley to everyone: 11:56 AM
All fliers. If it is going off campus, they have to create it. If staying on campus, we can create it, but it still have to be approved by them or by HR if not approved by them. The processes on campus get bogged down....

from Daniel Cornwall to everyone: 11:56 AM @Andrea - YIKES

from Susanne Caro to everyone: 11:56 AM Minnesota State University Doc Display Clearing House https://cornerstone.lib.mnsu.edu/lib-services-govdoc-displays/

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:56 AM @Andie That seems not only inefficient, but completely hampering to the library, and a bit anti-academic freedom.

from Lia Vella to everyone: 11:57 AM I have to go to a mandatory meeting and have to leave this one.... so sorry. This conference has been great so far!

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 11:57 AM
You need at least an in-house approval system.

from Ariella Mason to everyone: 11:57 AM Now that I know I will try!

from Andrea Andie Craley to everyone: 11:57 AM
All about the campus branding....

from Ariella Mason to everyone: 11:58 AM Canva generally for me

from Stephani Nia Rodgers to everyone: 11:58 AM This session has excited me to try new things! Thank you!!

from Leslee Stover to everyone: 11:58 AM

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone:　11:59 AM @Andie Condolences.

from Sara Winger to everyone:　11:59 AM
Our campus does not like QR codes what else can be used?

from Stephanie Ard to everyone:　11:59 AM I use tinyurl to make easy links to follow from Sara DAngelos to everyone:　11:59 AM

Is the Canva QR code generator available on the free version?

from Ariella Mason to everyone:　11:59 AM Shortened URL

from Paul Nease to everyone:　11:59 AM Canva QR's usually last forever. Be careful about using online qr code generators. Some will expire after a certain amount of time.

from Simon Elichko to everyone:　11:59 AM

from Daniel Cornwall to everyone:　12:02 PM
Be aware that some organizations, like mine (State of Alaska) have web filters that block most shortened URLs, especially bit.ly ones. I can see the policy from a cybersecurity point of view - you can hide anything in a shortened URL. But test to see if your audience can see shortened URLs before using them widely.

from Susanne Caro to everyone: 12:09 PM

from Elisabeth Garner to everyone: 12:27 PM
I'm curious, your monthly maintenance of your Libguides..is that mandatory from your library admin or did your department decide to that on your own? I think it's a wonderful idea to do that monthly, but I'm sure it's very time consuming!

from Susanne Caro to everyone: 12:27 PM
Hurricane Prepardness https://libguides.southalabama.edu/hurricanepreparedness

from Elisabeth Garner to everyone: 12:29 PM Thanks, Kaitlyn. I try to have a student look through my guides annually, but it's just myself and one student worker...:)

from Elisabeth Garner to everyone: 12:30 PM Link checker is a good idea. I Need to checkwith our library IT department to see how to go aboutdoing that.

from John Olson to everyone: 12:30 PM
How will you all be handling or preparing the outreach/PR and links to your sites with a looming government shutdown?

from Adrienne Teague to everyone: 12:30 PM @John Olson - Good question.

from Vicki Tate to everyone: 12:30 PM
The LibGuides at USA are very link-oriented since we use extensive lists of documents of various topics to show the scope of government information. Consequently, we have lots of links to maintain.

from JoAnna McCulley to everyone: 12:32 PM wow that's awesome!

from Elisabeth Garner to everyone: 12:32 PM
"Bullying" what a great topic to dive into...especially these days...cyber bullying for sure

from Yael Davis to everyone: 12:36 PM does anyone have techniques to promote gov doc material in academic law libraries?

from Elisabeth Garner to everyone: 12:37 PM
Like "Love Data Week" in February. Our library has participated in this too!

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 12:37 PM @Yael Constitution Week is usually your big drive/hook. Then incorporate into any displays that you can. And go into classrooms where they need admin law instruction.

from Kaylee Kern to everyone: 12:37 PM +1 Yael

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 12:38 PM
Also obviously like ConLaw, you could put together a guide and/or go in classroom and promote things like the online annotated constitution, and other various offerings.

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 12:38 PM Literally EVERYTHING in law school is gov info.

from Susanne Caro to everyone: 12:38 PM
Yael, I don't know if this would be of interest but I work with out AWSOME supreme court law library on a series of guides https://libguides.nmstatelibrary.org/casesincontext from Cassandra Wenzel to everyone: 12:39 PM +1 Susanne

from Paul Nease to everyone: 12:40 PM
I oversee the law collection in our library as well. The law and gov docs collections complement one another really well

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 12:40 PM Everyone in today's session needs to attend or watch the AI session tomorrow; huge potential for outreach and displays.

from Lisa Pritchard to everyone: 12:41 PM
Thanks for the tip, Charlie.

from Yael Davis to everyone: 12:41 PM
thanks to all. yes everything is law is involves gov docs. I can use your suggestions to make the students stop long enough to pay attention

from Lisa Pritchard to everyone: 12:42 PM

Can our panelists talk about funding? I love the idea of foam board, but I could go through a lot of it. And if I have no budget, I'm not using any.

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 12:46 PM
I love carving a pumpkin for the library circulation area. It can be gov info themed!

from Cassandra Wenzel to everyone: 12:46 PM
+1 Charlie, I am curious about this as well.

from Lauren Hall to everyone: 12:47 PM
There are a lot of pumpkin carving templates from government agencies

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 12:47 PM
I didn't know that, @Lauren, that's awesome!

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 12:47 PM

Meaning, you could print and give out those templates in October!

from Daniel Cornwall to everyone: 12:48 PM
Fun! - NASA example - https://www.nasa.gov/stem-content/nasa-themed-pumpkin-carving-templates-and-stencils/

I saw a great exhibit at the WY supreme court library where you could rule on a case and compare you ruling with the actual one.

from Stephanie Wilson to everyone: 12:53 PM Really wonderful and inspiring ideas here. Thank you!

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 12:53 PM
Also pro tip, students will respond to genuine enthusiasm for government information. If you can show them why it matters and should matter to them, and how much you love them, you will make connections whether you meant to or not.

from Charlie she-her Amiot to everyone: 12:54 PM
*how much you love gov info. not the students.

from Lisa Pritchard to everyone: 12:54 PM Absolutely, Charlie! I am an excessively enthusiastic promoted. :)

from Lisa Pritchard to everyone: 12:55 PM
I love that businesd card. So simple and attractive.

I can squeeze a dime out of a nickel, or more. But I can't squeeze a lot out of nothing!

from Lisa Pritchard to everyone: 12:58 PM
I definitely reuse items.
